About Engineering Entrance Exams

In order to get admission to the IITs, the student needs to write an exam called JEE. This exam consists of two stages:

Stage 1: JEE Main and Stage 2: JEE Advanced.

JEE Main & JEE Advanced are objective exams based on Std 11th & 12th PCM syllabus and are conducted online. Starting from 2019, the JEE Main exam will be held twice, in January and in April. JEE Advanced happens around May end.

Admission to NITs, IIITs & many other colleges happen on the basis of performance in the JEE Main exam.

XII Board marks do not influence the admissions in any college but are only used as an eligibility criterion. For eg: In case of IITs and NITs, the students are expected to score 75% aggregate or be in the top 20 percentile of their respective board.

State Entrance Exam MHT-CET for Maharashtra may continue in 2020 but the decision regarding the same is not yet declared by the State Govt. Syllabus of MHT-CET is similar to JEE Main and hence students preparing for JEE Main get prepared for MHT CET as well.

Apart from JEE Main & JEE Advanced, another popular exam is BITSAT, through which admission to BITS Pilani, Goa & Hyderabad is decided. BITSAT is also quite similar to JEE Main in pattern, syllabus and difficulty level.
